POLICE CALLED IN AFTER PUB DEATH

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

INQUIRIES continued this week after the body of a man was discovered with fatal stab wounds at a flat above a Spurs-themed pub.

A man was found and a seriously wounded woman on Wednesday evening last week in upstairs accommodation above The Bill Nicholson, in Northumberland Park, close to Tottenham Hotspur Football Club's White Hart Lane ground.

The two victims, both in the mid-30s, are believed to have lain dead or injured for two days before the landlord broke down the door of the flat and discovered them.

Detectives say they are not looking for anyone else in connection with the tragedy.

They have been unable to interview the woman, who is described as in a "critical, but stable" condition in hospital.

A post-mortem examination carried out on the at Haringey Mortuary on Friday found that the cause of death was multiple stab wounds. Police have yet to formally name the man.

The pub is popular with fans, particularly on match days.

Former BBC soap star Daniella Westbrook – who was evicted from TV's Celebrity Big Brother house last week – pulls pints there as a member of the bar staff

The pub was open for Spurs' home clash with Watford on Saturday.

Daniel talks his way into grand final

A HARINGEY pupil's "crash course" for the uninitiated in slang and street talk popular with youngsters has won him the regional heat of a UK public speaking contest for schools.

Daniel Edwards, pictured right, scooped top prize in the Haringey heat of the Jack Petchey Speak Out Challenge at Gladesmore Community School, in South Tottenham.

The year 10 pupil at Northumberland Park Community School, in Tottenham, impressed the judges with his speech about "modern-day slang" as he beat 15 other speakers aged 14 to 15 from other schools in the borough.

It won him a £100 gift voucher and a place in the grand final of the competition at the Piccadilly Theatre, in central London, in July.

The competition is organised by the Speakers Trust charity and the Jack Petchey Foundation and 504 students from 11 schools in the borough took part after each was given one day's training in public speaking and communication.

Ridwan Ramjaun, 14, from Woodside School, in White Hart Lane, Wood Green, came runner-up with his speech, "The C word", and third place went to Lanya Matthews, 14, from Gladesmore school, with her speech titled about "distorted reality".

Carroll and Son happy to keep up appearances

Floating like a butterfly: Footballers Tom Carroll and Heung-Min Son at the launch of the Shape Up With Spurs healthy living campaign

SPURS stars Heung-Min Son and Tom Carroll kicked off a community scheme with the goal of encouraging Haringey residents to adopt a healthier lifestyle.

As superfit professional footballers they eat healthily and do not need to watch their weight – but many youngsters and adults in the borough do, with obesity levels rising.

To tackle the problem free Shape Up With Spurs exercise classes are being run for 10 weeks by the Tottenham Hotspur Foundation at Tottenham Community Sports Centre, in High Road, Tottenham.

The twice-weekly sessions are open to all ages and abilities and offer work-outs, nutrition advice and support to help individuals achieve fitness goals.

It's part of the Haringey Obesity Alliance, which was launched in the summer, bringing schools, businesses and voluntary organisations together to tackle obesity in the borough.

Peter Morton, Haringey Council's cabinet member for health and well-being and chairman of the Haringey Obesity Alliance said: "It's fantastic to see Tottenham Hotspur – a key member of the alliance – launching this important community health scheme.

Grant Cornwell, chief executive of the Tottenham Hotspur Foundation, added: "Shape Up With Spurs uses the unique appeal of Tottenham Hotspur and the example of our players to encourage healthier lifestyles for people of all ages within our community."

Ticket office closure plan sparks concern over staffing levels

PROPOSALS to scrap the ticket offices at Alexandra Palace and Hornsey have sparked concerns that staff at the two railway stations will be reduced.

The operator of the Great Northern Line – Govia Thameslink Railway – wants to close 80 ticket offices across its network where fewer than 12 tickets an hour are sold and is launching a public consultation.

But Haringey's Labour London Assembly member Joanne McCartney is demanding that station staff will not be reduced and that a full range of tickets will be available.

She said: "What we don't want to see is an unwelcome drop in the number of station staff available to help passengers, particularly the elderly and disabled, who sometimes need that little bit of extra assistance."

FGM is 'abhorrent violence against women and girls'

Packed conference hears survivor's tale

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE practice of female genital mutilation is a "war on women", a survivor told a packed conference room in Enfield on Friday.

'A crime': MP Kate Osamor

Alimatu Dimonekene is the founder of Project ACEi, a charity based in the borough, which works to protect women and girls from FGM.

It is estimated that 140 million girls in parts of west and east Africa, Asia and the Middle East have been subjected to the abusive practice where their genitalia are sliced, removed and sometimes repositioned in an attempt to make sexual intercourse in later life as painful as possible for them.

The cutting of girls is often performed by women using rudimentary, unsterilised razor blades and without anaesthetic for their victims.

In Enfield, it is estimated that 3,000 girls are at risk of being subjected to FGM and more than 2,000 are living with the consequences of the practice.

The World Health Organisation details the range of ways in which the practice can destroy women's health for the rest of their lives, with incontinence, infertility, death in childbirth, and long-term excruciating pain all side-effects of the mutilation.

To mark international zero tolerance day for FGM, Mrs Dimonekene organised the conference in the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, during which campaigners on the issue spoke to delegates on what can be done to eradicate the practice.

'A war on women': Alimatu Dimonekene addresses delegates

"Why FGM is performed in communities is complicated," she told the packed room. "It is about love, it is about belonging. Most communities rely on marriage and in some places it is seen that you have to have had this to get married."

"I call FGM a war on women's genitals. It is an abhorrent violence against women and girls."

"FGM is a precursor to child and forced marriage. It also impacts on economic growth."

"For example, a girl aged three is subjected to FGM. When she is 16, she is forced to marry, so she is taken out of school, has no education and no way to improve her life."

"She has children at a young age. Those children then grow up with a mother who doesn't have an education – and then the cycle starts to repeat."

Also speaking to the delegates was Kate Osamor, the MP for Edmonton and junior shadow minister for women and equalities, who has campaigned in Westminster for better healthcare for women detained in Yarl's Wood immigration detention centre, in Bedfordshire, many of whom have been subjected to the practice.

She spoke of a recent parliamentary trip to Senegal, in west Africa, where FGM is now officially illegal, but where entrenched cultural attitudes mean that the problem is ongoing.

She said: "FGM is a crime, it is a shaming crime that means it is often under-reported. As the member of parliament for Edmonton and a junior shadow minister for women and equalities, I will be making sure the issue is on the agenda of government and we must never forget the victims in our community."

Happy memories: Volunteer Ethel Wilson with the musical hand-painted miniature dressing table which she bought her mother with her first pay packet and which raised £30 after she auctioned it off for Cancer Research UK

Ethel's donation proves chest the job for charity

A 95-YEAR-old volunteer at a charity shop has auctioned off a gift which she bought her mother with her first pay packet.

Ethel Wilson, of Bush Hill Park, has been helping out at Cancer Research UK charity shops for 20 years.

She decided to donate the musical hand-painted miniature dressing table, which she bought from Woolworths in 1931 to the charity.

She said: "I bought it with my first week's wages. I was working at Maynards sweet factory, making wine gums."

She said her first pay packet at the factory in Wood Green was seven shillings and six pence (about 37p today).

She said: "I bought the dressing table for my mother Maria Jane Barnes at the Woolworths down towards Turnpike Lane. She had a big, original, old-fashioned chest of drawers at our home in Park Lane in Tottenham and she put it on there."

She said she was having a clear-out at her home in Bush Hill Park and found the item of furniture.

"I had forgotten all about it," she said. "I thought we could raise some money for cancer research."

Mrs Wilson helps sorting out, pricing and cleaning bric-a-brac at the charity's shop in Green Lanes, Palmers Green, and thought it would raise a few pounds. She also volunteers at another charity shop in Walthamstow, in east London.

Sally Figueira, who manages the Palmers Green shop, decided to auction the donation to raise money to mark World Cancer Day last Thursday.

She put it in the shop window with a display telling the story behind the miniature piece of furniture and invited bids.

Ms Figueira said: "It's an absolute beauty. It's a tiny chest of drawers with a triple mirror. We sold it for £30."

The shop is also running a vintage event, which starts on Friday. Items on sale include vintage clothing, handbags, bric-a-brac and old books.

Last year's vintage event raised £4,500.

Denisa delights in her dream duet with Olly

By Julia Gregory

julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

AN Enfield teenager who underwent a brain operation had a wish come true when she got to sing a duet with her favourite pop star Olly Murs.

Denisa Alia met her idol through the Rays of Sunshine children's charity, which makes dreams a reality for seriously ill youngsters.

The 19-year-old was diagnosed with an aggressive brain tumour when she was 12 and underwent gruelling treatment including a ten-hour operation at Great Ormond Street Hospital to remove it, followed by six weeks of chemotherapy and radiotherapy.

And her courage in undergoing further treatment and hospital checks in the years since was rewarded last week when a white stretch limo picked up Denisa and her mum Ylber from their home in Jarvis Avenue, Freezywater, and drove them to the Amba Hotel, in Charing Cross, where she met her idol.

Olly, who shot to fame after coming runner-up on TV's X Factor in 2009, has been an ambassador for the charity since 2012.

She asked Olly to sing his number one single My Heart Skips a Beat as it helped her get through some very tough and painful times during her treatment.

She said: "I asked him to sing the song and he got me to sing with him. I was really happy. He said I must be his biggest fan. It was probably my only opportunity to meet him."

"He made me really relaxed. I was pleased to do my best and have fun."

Olly spent time talking to Denisa and the other children who had gathered to meet him.

Olly said: "I feel honoured to be someone's wish, so it was an absolute pleasure to meet Denisa and her family and spend time getting to know them."

Ylber added: "We will never forget this experience - we will remember it for the rest of our lives. Denisa was so happy and she really enjoyed the day. We really appreciate it. Thank you Rays of Sunshine for organising Denisa's wish."

Denisa still has check-ups six years after her treatment finished. "They said there was a chance I could die in surgery or be completely paralysed," she said. "I just think about cancer as a little blue cold."

She said the support of her and her mother and her father, construction worker Hilmi, sister Rezarta, 27, and brother Rezart, 28, had helped her cope with her illness.

The former pupil at Lea Valley High School, in Bullsmoor lane, Enfield, now spends time raising money for Macmillan Cancer Support and has completed fun runs and 10k events for the charity.

She is holding a tombola and cake sale at Waltham Cross shopping centre, in High Street, on Saturday, March 5.

Folk-Lore at the Barn

FOR a band whose name is suggestive of the familiar adage that if anything can go wrong it will do, Murphy's Lore - as distinct from Murphy's Law - are doing alright.

They are bringing their unique mix of folk rock to Enfield on Saturday evening when they perform at the Black Barn in the surroundings of Forty Hill.

Every second Saturday in the month the venue in Forty Hill stages concerts for established and up-and-coming bands and the five-piece are seasoned entertainers, having played thousands of gigs in the UK and Europe including the Glastonbury Festival numerous times. They have also released several albums.

The band, pictured above, describe their music as a mix of genres and styles predominantly based around rock with hints of Americana rock, country, blues and ska.

Billy Saggars, who formed the band in 1997, jokingly described what the crowd can expect from the band's energetic live performance: "A late start followed by a late finish and madness, mayhem and a musical mosaic in between."

The show starts at 8pm and finishes at 11pm. Tickets cost £5 and there is a licensed bar run by the Old Bell pub, in Baker Street, Enfield.

MP Burrowes backs campaign

THE Conservative MP for Enfield Southgate, David Burrowes is championing the Dingley family's cause in the Houses of Parliament.

In a bid to raise the profile of Mark and Chrissy's campaign, Mr Burrowes has written to the Foreign Secretary Philip Hammond to request a meeting with the Dingley family so that lessons can be learnt to avoid future tragic deaths.

He has also lobbied the government to update the Foreign Office's advice about the dangers of carbon monoxide poisoning for people travelling abroad.

Responding to a question on whether the guidelines around carbon monoxide poisoning would be updated, a Foreign Office spokesman said: "In the UK, the energy industry is providing important advice to the public on carbon monoxide poisoning through its Be Alarmed campaign. Our foreign travel checklist on the GOV.UK website signposts travellers to their advice."

Chrissy told the Advertiser that Mr Burrowes felt a particular connection to the case as one of his six children had attended the same secondary school as Francesca.

Giving his own tribute to the 22-year-old from Winchmore Hill, the MP said: "Our thoughts, hearts and prayers go out to the Dingley family as they remember the anniversary of their daughter's tragic death due to carbon monoxide poisoning."

"We need to do all we can to raise awareness of the dangers of carbon monoxide particularly for travelling overseas in gap year placements. I look forward to meeting the Foreign Office minister to ensure travel advice is adequate and support the family's campaign to raise awareness."

Coroner blames faulty pipe carbon monoxide poisoning

Inquest hears how 22-year-old died in flat

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A YOUNG woman from Winchmore Hill was just five weeks into her dream job of teaching English to schoolchildren in China when she was found dead in her flat, an inquest heard last week.

Recording a narrative verdict following the death of 22-year-old Francesca Dingley, of Hadley Way, on February 10 last year at her home in Cheng Du province, North London coroner Andrew Walker ruled that the cause was carbon monoxide poisoning.

At the hearing on Thursday, Mr Walker said that a pipe that was supposed to siphon carbon monoxide from the water heater, away from the flat, was so badly installed that copious amounts of the toxic gas leaked into the flat killing Francesca, a former student at Dame Alice Owen's School, in Potters Bar, and leaving her flatmate Emily Flaherty in a coma.

The inquest heard that Emily had told investigators while she was still in hospital recuperating that she had tried to have a shower the night before her friend's death.

Tragic victim: Francesca Dingley, from Winchmore Hill, who died from carbon monoxide poisoning after going to teach in China; right, with her sister Gabrielle and brother James sonous gas leaked out into the whole flat, silently seeping into Francesca's small room, close to the kitchen, and spreading into Emily's room further down the corridor.

Recording his verdict, the coroner said: "Francesca Dingley died as a result of leakage of carbon monoxide gases from a gas water heater that had been left running during the night. Carbon monoxide escaped into the residence as a pipe was distinctly larger than the hole cut in the window for it."

Chrissy Dingley, Francesca's mother, spoke up to stress that she would like it recorded that her daughter's death was nothing whatsoever to do with the water being left running.

She urged the coroner to make it clear that Emily was in no way at fault for her daughter's death.

The coroner agreed and said: "If it had been the right size hole in the glass window for the pipe, then it would have been fine."

He said because of the badly fitted pipe that was crushed into a very small hole in a glass window, with gaps left around the pipe – "however long the water would have been running the gas would have escaped into the residence."

Because of the faulty boiler system the women would have to run the tap in the kitchen to get hot water in the shower.

However, on this particular night Emily had accidentally left the tap in the kitchen running.

As water was pumped from the boiler, the poi-

We have to take something from the loss of Francesca, say parents

A FRAMED picture of a smiling 22-year-old lies in the centre of the table in the cool and impersonal meeting room of North London Coroner's Court.

Red roses lie beside the photograph of Francesca Dingley that her family have placed in the centre of the foursome.

"She was so warm and kindhearted," her older sister Gabrielle, 31, says softly. "She accepted everyone. She was just so good-natured."

"I never knew anyone like her and I never will again. She was the light and heart of the family."

Francesca's father Mark, 57, her mother Chrissy, 59, of Hadley Way, Winchmore Hill, sit opposite Gabrielle and their son James, 28.

"She loved everything to do with Asia," Chrissy says, adding that Francesca had been so happy before setting out to China about landing her "dream job".

Mark smiles as he explains his daughter's love of all things related to the Far East.

"She used to love watching Korean dramas on her laptop," he said, "much to the bemusement of her family."

Her mother explained that the whole family were so proud of what she had achieved by setting off to China just five weeks before her death as for the first five years of her life she had not spoken and had been identified as having learning difficulties right up until she started secondary school.

In happy times: Mark and Chrissy Dingley with daughter Francesca

Although still visibly shaken by the grief of losing Francesca, who had graduated from Bristol University with a degree in social policy shortly before her death, the family have decided to launch a campaign on raising awareness on the dangers of carbon monoxide poisoning.

From the briefcase Mark carried to the inquest he produces a small, light device – a travel carbon monoxide alarm.

"It's such a simple thing and it could save your life," he said, showing the gathered journalists how light the alarm is.

Chrissy explains that in the wake of her daughter's death she urged her friends to be aware of the dangers of carbon monoxide poisoning.

"A son of one of my friends was going on holiday to Croatia, and he took one of these with him," she said.

"He put it in the apartment he was staying in with ten other people and one night it went off."

"We have to take something from losing her and if it can help other people, if it can save other lives, then that's something."

Spate of sex attacks prompts steps aimed at 'making women feel safer'

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

IN the wake of a series of sex attacks in the east of the borough, a council chief has pledged a raft of measures to help women in the borough feel safer.

Two weeks ago a woman was attacked in Mottingham Road by four young men and just days later two 12-year-old girls were pounced on by an attacker in two Edmonton streets, yards away.

One managed to escape – but the second girl was subjected to an attack. A man has been charged in relation to the incidents involving the girls.

The attacks came in the same week that police launched an appeal for help in tracing a man who had sexually assaulted 12-year-old girls on buses running through the borough in December.

Yasemin Brett, Enfield Council's cabinet member for community safety, said she was in no doubt that the recent budget cuts to policing services and council budgets hit women hardest.

"I am looking into every measure we can do to help women feel safer and one of those things is council-run self-defence classes for girls and young women," she told the Advertiser.

"Don't get me wrong, women are strong, women are not victims. But at the moment women need things that will help them feel safer such as better street lighting."

In 2012, the council slashed the street

Council chief issues assurances following series of incidents lighting budget and while Mrs Brett would not be drawn on whether the authority would reinstate full funding for street lighting, she insisted: "All of these issues have been brought up in all of our budget meetings".

One of the issues that alarms her is the fact that she has been told by police that in Enfield they are aware of 20 sex offenders who are currently of no fixed abode, making it harder for officers to trace their movements.

And with the introduction of Secretary of State for Justice Michael Gove's "rehabilitation revolution", with more offenders being placed in the community for rehabilitation, Mrs Brett fears the problem may escalate.

"This scheme means that they are going to place more offenders in the community and they're expecting councils to manage this," she said.

"But the issue is – if you are going to put the offenders into the community, then you should be finding them housing.

"They say they give targeted rehabilitation to offenders – but if that is the case, why are there 20 sex offenders in the borough with no fixed abode?"

"The government don't even tell us how many offenders are housed in halfway hostels in the borough."

Mrs Brett adds that with the cuts, the Met Police's ability to tackle the problems caused by rehoused offenders will be greatly reduced.

"The police have had drastic cuts and they are expected to have more drastic cuts," she added.

"The current budgets are only up to March 2016. We were supposed to have 561 officers specifically for Enfield.

"That was scaled down to 557 and the number of police officers that we have now is 537, meaning that we are light by 20 officers. Police cannot be in 20 places at once."

As well as putting forward the idea of council-sponsored self-defence classes, she is hoping to bring back the community help points – places in the borough such as shops and businesses where young people can seek refuge if they ever feel unsafe.

"I want to reassure people that we are working closely with the police and are doing everything we can to help our people feel safe," she said.

Cabinet poised to give green light to Cycle Enfield plans

COUNCIL chiefs are expected to give the green light tonight (Wednesday) to plans that will transform a section of Green Lanes into a cycle-friendly route. Enfield Council's cabinet is expected to consider the modified Cycle Enfield plans at a meeting in the civic centre, in Silver Street. A group of residents who back the plans are gearing up for an organised bike ride to the civic centre in a show of public support to the council, which is keen to plough ahead with the scheme despite opposition from a traders and retailers who fear a loss of car parking spaces in Palmers Green will result in a fall of trade in the high street. A report prepared for cabinet members ahead of tonight's meeting calls for councillors to approve spending the next tranche of money from Transport for London (amounting to almost £6million) on detailed design, further consultation and implementation of the plans. One of the chief concerns of those opposed to any implementation of the scheme has been the fear that emergency service vehicles will have their response times delayed by the segregated cycle lane. However, the report reveals that on November 18, 2015, officers met London Fire Brigade to discuss the proposals and the impact on response times. The report states: "LFB did not raise any concerns at the meeting or via the consultation. "Despite repeated attempts, the London Ambulance Service have not so far engaged in the design process, although there will be a further opportunity for any comments to be considered as part of the statutory consultation process." Just days before the plans are expected to get the official go-ahead, Helen Osman, one of the organisers of the Save Our Green Lanes group, which is opposed to the scheme, released a written response to the economic impact assessment carried out by independent company Regeneris. She states: "It is recognised that Regeneris has been brought in at the 11th hour, without time to conduct the detailed audit which should form the basis of any economic risk analysis. This research is formulaic, a top-down analysis, primarily designed for town centres."

Ticket barriers signal an end to free rides

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

RESIDENTS who have become accustomed to jumping on a train for a few stops free of charge are set to have a nasty surprise when ticket barriers at stations in the borough become operational. Traditionally, there has been no barrier stopping travellers getting on or off trains at stations on the Hertford loop line that runs through the borough. Crews Hill, Gordon Hill, Enfield Chase, Grange Park, Winchmore Hill, Palmers Green and Bowes Park stations will all have new barriers installed, along with Hadley Wood, meaning the occasional free journey will be a thing of the past. Staff at the stations will no longer occupy the ticket office and will instead stand on the station concourse, selling tickets from hand-held devices. Enfield's London Assembly member Joanne McCartney has expressed concern at the loss of staff at the stations

Just the ticket: Barriers are being installed at railway stations including Palmers Green because she fears that without them at the ticket desks, vulnerable and elderly passengers could be left at a loss. She said: "What we don't want to see is an unwelcome drop in the number of station staff available to help passengers, particularly the elderly and disabled, who sometimes need that little bit of extra assistance." However, a spokesman from Govia Thameslink Railway, which runs trains on the line, insisted that no ticket offices would close immediately. He added that there would be no compulsory redundancies as a result of the changes. "All the affected stations will be staffed for longer as a result," he said. "At all but two they would be staffed from the very first train of the day to the very last, seven days a week. "This will drive other customer benefits. We'll also be able to increase the opening hours of facilities passengers have told us are important, such as waiting rooms, toilets and lifts." According to a spokesman for Govia Thameslink Railway, all extra monies raised will be channelled back to central government, who, it is hoped, will invest the money in improving rail services. The spokesman admitted that some rail customers might be frustrated at the added inconvenience when services along the line were delayed or cancelled. He said: "We do recognise that our services have not been as punctual as we would want and that they are very busy at peak times. "This is why we are working with Network Rail to improve signalling and bringing in new more spacious and more reliable trains."

Cloudy2Clear Windows – Service With A Smile!

It's been a crazy few months for Cloudy2Clear Windows. The company which specialises in repairing windows which are steamed up, broken or damaged by replacing the panes – not the frames has grown rapidly as homeowners take advantage of their services.

Managing Director Richard Power feels that it's all about service. "Our product is simple. If your double glazing is misted up we can replace the glass at a fraction of the cost of a new window, in any type of frame, and with a new 10 year guarantee. But it's not just about saving people money, although that obviously helps. Many tradespeople have struggled since last year and I honestly feel that during the good times a minority perhaps didn't focus on customer care as much as they should have done. We make sure we turn up when we say we will, do the job the customer requires and leave their house as clean as a whistle. I often get comments back from customers on how they really didn't expect that sort of service which, in a way, is very sad for the service industry as a whole."

Cloudy2Clear service the Enfield, Edmonton, Palmers Green, Winchmore Hill & Southgate areas and Richard is finding that his approach is a major factor in his success. "The truth is that it's not just the personal satisfaction that I get from doing a good job but also it makes good business sense. I get a huge amount of business from friends and family of people I've done work for, which just goes to show how much a little bit of effort is appreciated."

So, if your windows are steamed up, broken or damaged give Richard a call for a free quotation on 0800 61 21 118 and he'll be happy to help!

Cafe woman's dismay as market shuts up shop

By Ruth McKee
ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

SHOPPERS hunting honey, produced from hives in the borough or jams and chutneys churned out by budding bottlers will have to look further afield for their produce after a market announced its closure.

The Sunday market in the Palmers Green car park, which sold locally grown fruit and veg, has folded after traders failed to cover their costs week after week.

Annita Correia, who runs Annita's

Cafe on platform one of Palmers Green station, took over the running of the market in March last year.

However, despite being given space for stallholders on the pavement outside the job centre in Station Road, Palmers Green, and attracting a dedicated band of loyal shoppers, Annita explains that it just was not enough to keep the traders coming back.

"It was a good thing for the community," Annita told the Advertiser. "Losing it has made me feel quite sad. I am disappointed."

She explained that the traders and organisers had done everything possible to publicise the market, but residents in the area had not made regular visits – so, despite their loyal fans, the market was not sustainable.

"It is a shame because people should want to support their local enterprises and should want to buy local produce, but the traders could not continue to keep turning up if they were not selling enough," she added.

However, Annita remains upbeat and will focus her passion for supporting local producers from her café in the station, in Aldermans Hill.

Bids welcomed for leases on five libraries

THE council has denied it is gearing up to flog off five of the borough's libraries.

Council chiefs have formally opened a bidding process for expressions of interest in five libraries – in Enfield Lock, Bullsmoor, Oakwood, Winchmore Hill and Fore Street, Edmonton.

Organisations are being encouraged to apply to lease the buildings from the council before February 26.

They would pay rent to the local authority and would be responsible for the upkeep of the building – but the council maintains it would look after the books and library services that remain.

The libraries are being rebranded as "community libraries", which will have reduced services and fewer books available. Library users will also have to share space with clients of whichever organisation is successful in taking over the buildings.

Asked why third parties would be interested in a scheme where they do not have full use of the space, an Enfield Council spokesman said: "The third party organisations would benefit from renting high quality space in strategic locations around Enfield which would benefit them and their clients while the council would benefit from having a partner organisation which would manage the building for the council and pay rent to us, enabling us to maintain a first-rate library service during a difficult financial period.

The council will continue to run and provide library services from each of the locations in question."

The Advertiser understands from a source inside the council that there will be "a handful" of compulsory redundancies as a result of the restructuring of the service.

According to the council, of the 85 full-time library positions before the restructuring took place 53 people remain in full-time employment and "a handful" of people are facing compulsory redundancy with the remaining taking voluntary redundancy or being found other employment by the local authority.

Mystery man: A still from CCTV footage, above, is of a former police officer known only as Basil, said heist ringleader Danny Jones, from Bush Hill Park, right

Mystery man Basil 'is former copper'

By Julia Gregory

julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

ONE of the men involved in the £14million Hatton Garden jewel heist has claimed the mystery man known as Basil who let the gang in to a vault brimming with jewels is an ex-policeman.

The hunt for Basil featured on Monday's edition of Crimewatch on BBC TV when the head of the Flying Squad Detective Sergeant Craig Turner revealed new information and images.

So far police have recovered £3.7m stolen from the jewel vaults and are also appealing for help to find the missing gems.

In a letter to Sky News, one of the ringleaders Danny Jones, from Enfield, claimed that Basil recruited him to the gang, which made off with millions of pounds of jewellery, cash and bullion last Easter.

Police have offered a £20,000 reward to help them convict Basil, who is still on the run.

He was spotted on CCTV helping the gang and was filmed carrying a black bin bag over his shoulder, perhaps to obscure his face from the camera.

Jones, of Park Avenue, Bush Hill Park, told Sky News: "Basil was the brains as I was recruited by him. He let me in on the night of the burglary, he hid keys and codes throughout the building."

He said he does not know Basil's identity and would not "grass" on him even if he did.

However, the 60-year-old wrote: "I can say that someone told me he was an ex-policeman who got into security. He said Basil heard about me from a close friend on the police force as I was arrested for a similar raid in Bond Street in 2010."

He said he only saw Basil four times and does not know where he lives.

Det Sgt Turner said Basil was "very elusive to CCTV and may have been local to the area."

Jones was arrested in May 2015, a month after the raid. Police had planted a bug in two of the gang's cars and placed them under surveillance.

Police recovered a large amount of cash, together with gemstones, jewellery, facemasks, a walkie talkie and a book called Forensics for Dummies during a raid at his house.

He was allowed out of prison, where he was on remand, under armed guard in October 2015 to show police where he had hidden pouches containing jewellery in a family plot in Edmonton cemetery.

A week earlier police recovered more jewellery from a nearby plot connected with Jones's family.

Jones admitted his role in the jewel heist and is due to be sentenced at Woolwich Crown Court next month.

Detective Constable Jamie Day, of the Flying Squad, told the Crimewatch programme that Jones was an "organised criminal" who brought his skills as a fitter to the gang.

His fellow ringleader and Enfield resident Terry Perkins, 67, from Heene Road, who also pleaded guilty to conspiracy to burgle, will also be sentenced at the hearing, which starts on March 7, together with four other gang members.

Another Enfield man, self-employed plumber Hugh Doyle, of Riverside Gardens, was found guilty by a jury at Woolwich Crown Court last month of concealing, converting or transferring criminal property.

He will be sentenced at the same hearing.

Perkins's daughter and son-in-law, both from Enfield, are also awaiting sentence after entering guilty pleas to conspiracy to conceal, convert or transfer criminal property.

Terri Robinson, 35, of Sterling Road, and Brenn Walters, 44, of Manor Court, will be sentenced at the end of March.

Leisure centre fined after mouse droppings discovery

By Julia Gregory

julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

MOUSE droppings were found where food was being prepared in the kitchen of a health spa and fitness centre by food safety inspectors, a court heard last week.

David Lloyd Leisure was fined £11,652.40, with £1,652.40 costs, when it was taken to court after inspectors found mouse droppings in food storage and preparation areas, behind fridges and freezers and under shelves at the club, in Carter-hatch Lane, Enfield.

Magistrates heard that the rodent droppings were discovered during a routine inspection on December 3, 2014.

David Lloyd Leisure pleaded guilty to not keeping its premises clean and maintained in good repair and condition with inadequate procedures in place to control pests.

Enfield Magistrates' Court, in Lordship Lane, Tottenham, was told on Thursday that inspectors also discovered rodent droppings in the staff office, which opened into the kitchen. They found "poor quality cleaning" in the kitchen and food storage areas and a build-up of dirt and food debris on kitchen equipment.

Inspectors also found dirt and food debris on surfaces which are touched by people's hands, such as fridge and freezer handles and light switches, and around doors.

The kitchen was shut down immediately by Enfield Council's food safety team because of the "imminent risk to public health".

Inspectors said that their main concern was that food which was handled and prepared in the kitchen could become contaminated, along with the pest infestation and poor cleaning in the kitchen and food preparation areas.

Since the inspection the kitchen has been cleaned thoroughly and the pest problem eradicated. Other improvements were also made and the council has allowed it to reopen.

In a statement David Lloyd Leisure said: "As soon as we were made aware of the issues, we immediately closed the kitchen and took measures to fully rectify the situation. As a result, the kitchen reopened the next day following a re-inspection by the council.

'Imminent risk': Mouse droppings were found during the inspection

"We have taken stringent measures to ensure that the situation does not happen again. We have retrained the kitchen's team members and continue to closely monitor standards at the premises, including implementing regular inspections by our independent health and hygiene consultants NSF.

"David Lloyd Leisure has taken on board all of the issues raised by this case and constantly monitors all clubs to ensure that they operate to the highest possible standards at all times.

Daniel Anderson, the council's cabinet member for environment, said: "It is completely unacceptable for places which sell food to endanger the health of customers by failing to take proper precautions against pests and operating unhygienic premises."

He said he was pleased that swift action had been taken after the inspection.

He added: "We will continue to close down dirty or unhygienic food premises."

Take a whisk with healthy recipes, youngsters told

CHILDREN are taking up their vegetable peelers and whisks in a bid to be crowned top health food entrepreneur.

Pupils in years five and six from 12 schools in Edmonton will be taking part in a competition to see who can create the top healthy food product.

In a bid to tackle the plague of childhood obesity, which is particularly endemic in the east of the borough, the Edmonton Schools Partnership has set up a ten-week course to educate youngsters about healthy cooking.

The course will also feature workshops on how to market and develop their product and the budding business owners will then pitch their products to a panel of judges that is set to include Bake Off star Urvashi Roe.

The Dragon's Den-style event will take place on March 3, in Edmonton Green shopping centre.

Green belt joy as campaigners win first skirmish in development fight

By Ruth McKee
ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

RESIDENTS are celebrating after property developers shelved plans to build homes and a school on a stretch of green belt land in the borough.

Fairview Homes will not be proceeding with plans to build 300 homes, a further education college and a secondary school on an expanse of green belt land off Enfield Road and Cotswold Way, in Oakwood.

The land falls within the borough's green belt, but the developers were hoping they would be granted permission as the need for a secondary school could count as an exceptional circumstance. However, council planning officers have announced that Fairview Homes have backed away from the plans after being told by the Greater London Authority that there were no special circumstances that could justify building on the site.

It is understood the developers will be lobbying through the local plan consultation process to have the green belt allocation changed to enable building on the site in the future.

Maria Turner, a resident of the area and one of the organisers of the Enfield Road Watch campaign group, welcomed the decision.

She told the Advertiser: "This is a first stage relief. We really need to see what happens with the local plan. We would ask all residents of Enfield to look into the consultation before it closes on February 12 and have their say on keeping green belt land in Enfield."

She said that the campaign had been a joint effort between residents, the Highlands ward

councillors and the people of Enfield as a whole. "People in Enfield made it clear they value the green belt land," she added "We all came together for the greater good and it worked out well."

Ward councillor Glynis Vince said that she welcomed the good news, but warned: "We still have a fight on our hands."

"We will now be urging all local residents to engage with the local plan review process and make sure the council does not cave in to the pressure and reallocate this land as suitable for development." Anyone wishing to contribute to the local plan consultation can log on to <https://new.enfield.gov.uk/services/planning/planning-policy/local-plan/>

Life president – Enfield Over 50s Forum

THEY tell us that Britain is the fifth largest and richest economy in the world...and yet.

One older person still dies every seven minutes from the cold weather; one third of people in the UK aged 65 and over cannot afford to heat their homes adequately; 40,800 older people died from the cold last winter.

The Over 50s Forum cannot remain quiet and unmoved when some 13,000 low-income Enfield families are defined as living in fuel poverty households – meaning they spend too much of their income on fuel bills.

That is why our Winter Fair at Enfield County School on Friday, February 19, opening at 9.30am, is inviting anyone struggling to heat their homes affordably to come along and meet the national Warm Homes Campaign team run by National Energy Action.

More than that, the Winter Fair will be the largest-ever showcase under one roof of the many activities available in Enfield to help older people keep active in mind and body.

With more than 20 display stands by clubs linked to the forum, ranging from bowls to knitting and rambling, we aim to prove that there is no need to be old and lonely in Enfield.

You will be able to join in or watch zumba gold dancing, have an Indian head massage or learn some chair exercises. And, thanks to the Greggs Foundation, there's a free sandwich lunch, free raffle and free admission.

Voluntary work can offer so many opportunities

AS we begin 2016 and the world starts to look ahead to the Rio Paralympics (and Olympics, of course), I am writing to ask if your readers would like to volunteer with Leonard Cheshire Disability.

As well as supporting disabled people to live life the way they choose, the work will enable them to master many new skills and discover an amazing new side to themselves.

Whether they can spare a few hours a week or support us occasionally, their assistance is really appreciated.

Leonard Cheshire Disability works for a society in which every person is equally valued, supporting thousands of people in the UK and around the world with physical and learning disabilities.

Volunteers can help in many different ways, such as using IT skills to help a disabled person to write an email or surf the internet, sharing similar interests, supporting disabled people to access sports facilities, gardening, being a shopping buddy or helping out with activities like art or cookery. The options are almost unlimited.

Across many parts of the country, we are particularly keen to recruit new volunteer drivers, as well as volunteers to support disabled people in the evenings and weekends.

Some people are put off volunteering because they don't know what to expect, or may not know someone who is disabled, but this doesn't matter.

The most important thing is the willingness to support others and be a part of something bigger. In return, volunteers have fun, meet new people and form lasting friendships.

Why not come and join us? To find out more about how to become a Leonard Cheshire Disability volunteer, visit www.leonardcheshire.org, call 020 3242 0296 or email volunteers@leonardcheshire.org

Rest assured, we take attacks very seriously

RUTH McKee's article ("Concerns over sex attacks", Advertiser, February 3, 2016) underlines how important it is to have a fully funded police service the public can rely on and policies that protect the public.

I can only imagine how dreadful it must be for that 12-year-old girl and the woman in Nottingham Road to have endured horrific sex attacks. As cabinet member for community safety, my heart goes out to them and I have met with the police and made sure all borough schools are written to.

It is also about creating a climate in the area that empowers women through jobs and education, stressing that women hold an equal place to men in all our diverse communities.

The Conservatives' rehabilitation revolution, like care in the community, sounds good, but in practice has meant sex offenders have been placed in the community, sometimes with no home to go to at all.

There are 20 such individuals of no fixed abode as reported to us at a recent meeting for Enfield. Central government cuts, the horrendous cost of housing and the lack of it and the reduction in neighbourhood policing are putting the public at risk and not rehabilitating these offenders at all.

In fact, recently released government figures show repeated reoffending. While some extra police resource has now gone into sex offending, this is sadly too late for some of these recent victims. As a local authority, we take this issue very seriously. Our award-winning CCTV service is in operation and we are making all necessary representations to the Metropolitan Police.

Councillor Yasemin Brett
Enfield Council

Find out what's needed first

WHO wouldn't want a community hub? That was the question at last Wednesday's ward forum at Bowes school – and that's what the council said it wants as the future of the Ritz Parade on the North Circular Road. Sounds good, doesn't it?

But there's a problem, well actually two problems.

Firstly, no-one knows what a "community hub" is. Is it a GP surgery, meeting rooms, a school, a row of shops or a cinema?

All these suggestions were made at the ward forum, but the six councillors present were notably silent and they were careful not to ask the residents present what they specifically wanted. Asking them – rather than the waltz around the houses that we got – would have provided clarity to the council's negotiations with the developer.

Which brings us to the second problem. Whatever the local people want, the council probably can't provide it.

The council doesn't own the land and it couldn't afford to develop it if it did – and it can't instruct the developer, the Notting Hill Housing Trust, which, despite its charitable status, seems determined to maximise its profits.

Councillors should have used the meeting to get clarity about local needs. They could call on the housing trust to deliver what's needed both on and adjacent to the site.

For instance, a new road crossing would be very useful. With the money it's made from its other sites on the North Circular, it can well afford to.

Child refugees need our help

BARNARDO'S is supporting calls for the government to admit 3,000 more unaccompanied refugee children to the UK – but without the right help, many of these children could find themselves alone, homeless and battling mental health issues.

Many unaccompanied children will have been severely traumatised by the effects of war, having witnessed things we can't even imagine. These children need, and deserve, a decent place to live, with the right people and support in place for as long as they need it.

Specialist staff must be put in place to immediately identify the type of support these children need, including trauma or mental health support.

Those specialists then need to ensure that children stay in sensitive, loving foster homes while they live in the country and that each foster carer is specially trained to nurture them.

Shockingly, many unaccompanied children end up staying in inappropriate placements and accommodation with little help. As a result, two-thirds go missing from care, putting them in danger from traffickers or predatory adults.

Effective support now will prevent greater problems in the future.

Scheme gives me a headache

IN respect of the Enfield Town scheme, why is the council spending all this money on changing the town, which hardly anyone wants, because elderly people, who frequently use buses, would find it impossible getting off and on one with walking frames etc.

Instead they ought to spend some of the money sorting out the pavements. I am 77 years old and walk whenever I can, and every road I walk down is a deathtrap.

I have tripped up three times in the past year, in one instance ending up at Chase Farm Hospital with a split-open head and a £400 bill for new glasses.

If I do it again (God forbid), I will sue Enfield Council.

Grange Park Prep School is a happy and successful school that provides a stimulating educational experience for girls between the ages of 3 -11.

Each child is known individually by all staff and a strong parent/school partnership ensures a thriving and proactive environment which is evident from Nursery. Children joining the school engage in a stimulating curriculum including art, dance and drama, music, French and P E with dedicated teaching specialists.

In Key Stage 2 preparation for 11+ state selective and independent secondary schools starts from as early as Year 3, where girls undertake verbal and non-verbal reasoning as part of the curriculum. In addition in Year 5, girls wishing to sit for selective schools, attend extra prep classes after school, thus equipping them with the tools to achieve their maximum potential in terms of academic attainment.

The Governors of GPPS are committed to maintaining small classes which are taught by excellent staff, with specialist teaching in English, maths, French, Dance and Drama, Music and PE.

Girls enjoy a very busy school life, and benefit from an excellent variety of extra curricular activities, including LAMDA, horse riding and chess, further enriching their experience and creating lifetime memories.

Before leaving GPPS every girl will have been given a responsible role at some level, instilling in them a sense of duty and ingrained confidence, preparing them for today's challenges.

FAMILY ANNOUNCEMENTS

Are you in the picture?: The youth club based at St Giles Church, which was pulled down in the 1960s, put on an annual show or concert party for old folk – now Bob Shears, who is in the front row, one from the right, is helping to organise a reunion

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

A CHURCH youth club popular with generations of teenagers in Enfield in the 1950s and 1960s may be gone, but it most certainly hasn't been forgotten.

A search has been launched for former members of St Giles church youth club so they can be invited to a special reunion.

The church stood close to the junction of Bullsmoor Lane and Great Cambridge Road, Enfield, but no longer exists having been demolished in the late 1960s.

But the club it ran for the area's teenagers holds fond memories for many who attended and several ex-members now aged in their 70s have kept in touch and occasionally meet up for lunch.

Now they are holding a big get-together on Wednesday, February

Youth club friends set to be reunited

24, at 1pm at the Lion and Lamb Inn, in Stortford Road, in Little Canfield, Nr Takeley, Dunmow, Essex, and want as many former members as possible to go along.

"The youth club was a great place for having fun with your pals and for meeting girls," said retired furniture shop retailer Bob Shears, who is helping to organise the reunion.

"I met my first wife there and present at the forthcoming reunion will be three married couples who each met their partners at the club having been wed 54, 55 and 56 years respectively.

"Remember this was all before internet dating or Facebook. The club acted like an introduction agency," added Bob, who used to live in Great Cambridge Road before moving to Bournemouth and then retiring to Ayrshire, Scotland.

He will be travelling down for the reunion and is looking forward to sharing memories and meeting old friends.

"The church used to have an altar at one end and a stage at the other and every year youth club members would put on a show or concert party for old folk," he recalled.

"Activities included table tennis and dances and I remember tape recording Pick of the Pops from the radio and dancing to Elvis, Cliff Richard, Tommy Steele and Joe Brown, among others."

Anyone who used to belong to the club can contact Bob on 07941 444461 or email him via bob.shears@hotmail.com

Thirteen held at factory after immigration raid

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

A SWOOP by immigration officers on an Edmonton factory led to the arrest of 13 men.

The raid on the premises of Sweet Mahall Ltd, in Rivermead Road, was carried out on January 28 by Home Office officials and Enfield Council.

It followed information that many of the workforce were in the UK illegally and that the factory was also being used as their living quarters.

Officers arrested 12 Pakistani men and an Afghan national all aged between 24 and 61 on various offences relating to their immigration status, including entering the country illegally and overstaying or working in breach of their visa conditions.

Nine of the Pakistani men and the Afghan national are now at an immigration detention centre facing deportation, while the remaining three men have been ordered to report to the Home Office regularly while their immigration status is investigated.

The owners of the business have been warned they face court action and a potential £260,000 fine – £20,000 per illegal worker – unless they can demonstrate the appropriate right-to-work checks were carried out, such as seeing a passport or Home Office documents confirming their permission to work.

Assistant director David Seymour-Smith, head of the North London Immigration Enforcement Team, said: "This was a large, meticulously planned operation. We rely on information from the public and I would urge people to report suspected immigration abuse to us."

The council's cabinet member for environment Daniel Anderson added: "We are determined to take action against the small number of businesses in our borough which do not play by the rules."

Free car seat safety checks for youngsters

FREE car seat checks are on offer in Enfield to help prevent injuries to children.

The checks are being provided by the council after research from the Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents found that four in five child seats in the UK are not fitted properly.

The checks start next Wednesday (February 17) at Halfords, in Great Cambridge Road, Enfield, between 10am and 2pm.

Free face painting will keep youngsters entertained while the all-important checks take place.

By law children under 4ft 5ins, or 135cm, tall have to travel in a proper child seat. The free checks are aimed at giving new and prospective parents and carers the chance to make sure they have the correct seat for their child and car and that it is fitted correctly.

They can also get a demonstration of how to fit any seats they already have and look at a range of seats experts will bring along on the day.

Enfield Council's cabinet member for environment Daniel Anderson is hoping parents take advantage of the chance to ensure their children are travelling safely.

He said: "This is a great free initiative which will help improve the safety of children travelling in cars by helping to ensure that parents are aware of how to correctly install their child's car seats. Enfield Council is committed to reducing the number of deaths and serious injuries on our roads and this initiative will help us achieve this aim."

Further events will be held between 10am and 2pm at Tesco, in High Street, Ponders End, on Friday, April 29, and at Mothercare, in the Ravenside Retail Park, in Angel Road, Edmonton, on Wednesday June 1. The team will also be at Southbury Leisure Centre, in Southbury Road, Enfield, on Wednesday, August 10, and at Asda, in Chase Side, Southgate, on Tuesday, October 25.

Improve Local Air Quality In Your Area

Air pollution is a major environmental risk to health. The elderly and young children are most vulnerable. In London there are up to 9,500 deaths per year.

Help to improve air quality in your area by:

- ➔ Making use of public transport improves traffic movement while also reducing congestion with less vehicles on the road. New lower emission 'hybrid' buses have now been introduced across Enfield.
- ➔ Walking and cycling are free/low-cost alternate travel options. Visit 'Cycle Enfield' for more information.
- ➔ Turn off your car engine when at a standstill. Not only will it help cut pollution but it will also save you fuel.
- ➔ Create/join a car sharing scheme with colleagues and parents, saving you money on fuel.

Being environmentally friendly is good economics in our home and budget, and with the earth. There are numerous ways to go greener at home besides just recycling. Here we list our top 10:

1. Turn off all lights when you leave the room.
2. Walk or ride a bicycle wherever and whenever possible.
3. Support your local economy.
4. Support local restaurants that use food derived less than 100 miles away and learn about the benefits of eating locally.
5. Fix leaky taps.
6. Lower the temperature on your hot water heater.
7. Unplug unused chargers and appliances.
8. Repurpose something - it's fun.
9. Collect rainwater and use it to water houseplants and the garden.
10. Donate to, and shop at charity shops. You'll be recycling perfectly usable items, you'll be supporting your local economy and you'll be saving money.

SUPPORT YOUR LOCAL FARMERS' MARKET THIS SUNDAY...

The Sidings N21 is a bespoke farmers' market that is open every Sunday 9am-2pm. It hosts a variety of traders supplying only the best quality produce that you would not find available in your average super-market. Our traders offer only the freshest local food and much of it is gluten free, dairy free and organic.

Come and meet the farmers, bakers, butchers, chefs, restaurateurs, growers and enthusiastic local cooks who share a passion for locally sourced & sustainable produce. The market site is one of the best sites for a farmers market in London.

The Sidings N21 is situated in the middle of the village, next to Winchmore Hill railway station and is surrounded by interesting shops, coffee bars, restaurants and pubs.

What's on and what's coming

Showstoppers: The show features performances of hits including Sherry, Walk Like a Man and Big Girls Don't Cry

Frankly fantastic as the hits keep on coming...

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

FRANKIE Valli and the Four Seasons have earned their place in pop's firmament.

A string of smash hits and number ones, including Sherry, Walk Like a Man and Big Girls Don't Cry, has made them one of the most successful bands of all time.

And a spectacular new tribute musical show, Let's Hang On, at Wyllyotts Theatre in Darnes Lane, Potters Bar, on Saturday takes you on a musical journey charting their remarkable rise to stardom.

Their insanely catchy hits, many recorded at the height of their fame in the 1960s and 1970s, featuring tight falsetto vocals and doo-wop harmonies, have become a soundtrack to the lives of generations.

This award-winning production tells the story of how four New Jersey boys from the wrong side of the tracks invented their own unique sound selling more than 100 million records worldwide.

And you'll be amazed at just how prolific they were at producing chart-topping hits.

Even 1970s' tartan teen sensations the Bay City Rollers owe them a debt of gratitude having racked up their biggest selling number one with a cover of Bye, Bye Baby (Don't Cry). Add to that the theme song to Grease – the biggest grossing musical film of all time – which Frankie Valli sang.

Let's Hang On features classic early material and sensational acapella singing, but soon its non-stop hits all the way guaranteed to get the audience dancing in the aisles.

All the aforementioned smashes are performed together with Beggin', Can't Take My Eyes Off Of You, Working My Way Back To You, Rag Doll, Let's Hang On and many more, not forgetting December, 1963 (Oh, What A Night), of course.

You can have your event included in the Enfield Advertiser for free. Tilda and co reach boiling point

A BIGGER SPLASH (15, 124 mins)

SUN, sea, sex and skulduggery are the key ingredients of writer-director Luca Guadagnino's spicy cinematic cocktail, which elegantly updates the erotically charged 1969 thriller La Piscine from St Tropez to the rugged Sicilian island of Pantelleria.

Simmering sexual tensions of the original have been turned up to a furious boil in A Bigger Splash, which demands full-frontal nudity from almost the entire cast as the battle of the sexes claims at least one casualty.

The striking backdrop of a volcanic Mediterranean island is an apt metaphor for the dormant desires of morally conflicted characters, who threaten to erupt under sustained provocation.

The four protagonists all seem capable of inflicting a fatal blow and breaking the heady spell of the untamed idyll.

It's this air of uncertainty and impending doom which electrifies every frame of Guadagnino's stylistically specific vision.

Once again the filmmaker collaborates with Oscar-winning actress Tilda Swinton and gifts her a plum role as glam rock doyenne Marianne Lane, who is recuperating from surgery on her vocal chords.

Medically enforced silence forces Swinton to convey tortuous emotions through movement rather than words, allowing her co-stars to inflict damage with their well-placed verbal grenades.

Marianne has retreated to a villa on Pantelleria with her boyfriend, documentary filmmaker Paul De Smedt (Matthias Schoenaerts), who has tamed her wild, drug-crazed excesses while controlling his own alcoholism.

Father and daughter: Harry Hawkes (Ralph Fiennes) and Penelope (Dakota Johnson) PA Photo/icon

During a lazy afternoon on a secluded beach, Marianne receives a telephone call from her old flame, boorish record producer Harry Hawkes (Ralph Fiennes), who has arrived unexpectedly on the island.

It's clear that Harry has arrived with an ulterior motive – to drive a wedge between the couple – he has brought along his alluring teenage daughter Penelope (Dakota Johnson) to distract Paul.

"Underneath, she's a lovely bitch like her mother," jokes Harry.

Worming his way into the guest room at Marianne's secluded villa, Harry charms housekeeper Clara (Elena Bucci) and wallows in nostalgia to remind the hostess of happy times with him.

Marianne remains by Paul's side until the two men finally lock horns.

"You have no idea of the stuff I got her off," rages Harry.

"I got her off you," counters Paul bluntly.

Sharing its title with a 1967 David Hockney painting, A Bigger Splash is energised by Fiennes's unflinching portrayal of an emotional wrecking ball.

A centrepiece sequence of the actor grating wildly to The Rolling Stones's hit Emotional Rescue – an ironic musical choice – truly smacks our gobs.

Swinton is in imperious form and on-screen chemistry with Schoenaerts is molten like freshly spewed lava.

Johnson is scorched by her co-stars, but shows greater depth than Fifty Shades Of Grey afforded her.

Guadagnino repeatedly turns up the heat until we're itching for a cooling dip in the ominously blue waters of Marianne's pool.

RATING: 7.5/10

Night Eagle's a real high-flier

By Matt Kimberley

THE Renegade is a chunky little crossover with SUV looks and, at the top end of the range, the guts to back up its beefy appearance.

It's yours in more efficient two-wheel or surprisingly capable four-wheel drive guises, including a Trail Rated version that adds a small fortune to the price, but turns it into a tenacious little off-roader.

The Night Eagle is a special edition limited to just a few hundred units in the UK, with a handful of European markets getting small numbers as well.

It gets some specification upgrades, although these haven't been fully confirmed for the UK market yet, and a semi-matt dark grey paint option that looks the business.

Who doesn't love a limited edition? Buyers will hope that extra kudos points attached to Night Eagle models will improve residual values, but don't count on dealer-sourced finance to reflect that. Still, the chance to own something much less common has got to carry some weight in the showroom.

I love the Renegade's style. It has signature Jeep features such as the seven-section grille and the trapezoidal wheel arches, but the boxy shape around them is as classic as it is contemporary.

From the high driver's seat, the bonnet bulges into view and makes the car feel both bigger and meaner than it really is.

The boot is quite big thanks to the height on offer. At 351 litres, you'll find more space than in a Ford Focus, but less than in a Seat Leon or the Renault Captur with its seats pushed all the way back for maximum rear legroom.

The Captur's boot is expandable to an amazing 455 litres, too, so there are better options for space hunters. There's ample rear legroom, to give the Renegade its credit, but unlike the Cherokee Night Eagle, it holds on to cloth seats.

The Cherokee equivalent gets leather. Practicality in the smaller car should be boosted by rear parking sensors, which aren't standard on the Longitude model on which the Night Eagle is based.

You sit high above the road, eyeballing van drivers and surveying the kingdom of your driveway.

You're almost above the pedals compared to the driving position in lower cars, but there's plenty of space and the steering wheel doesn't clash with your knees.

Dark styling details are Night Eagle add-ons, but very little is different to an ordinary Renegade.

The diesel engine is a bit noisy, but it's strong at low revs, punting the little Jeep up the road easily. It could be taller-gear for lower cruising revs, but the other side of the coin is that down-shifts are rarely needed for motorway overtakes. The ride strikes an average for the sector, between comfort and sportiness.

It's true there's not that much going on to tempt too much extra money out of buyers, but technological additions do add a bit of value.

The choice could turn out to be a coin toss between this and a standard but higher-spec Renegade.

There are many people out there, however, that just want that extra exclusivity, and the Night Eagle hits the spot.

Young families are the main target audience for the Renegade, specifically ones who engage with either the freedom-focused Jeep ideology or the dozens of cute little design "Easter eggs" that are hidden in and around the car. Go and have a look at one and keep your eyes peeled.

POCHETTINO HAILS HIGH-FLYING SPURS

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

MAURICIO POCHETTINO hailed his Tottenham Hotspur players after they capped an excellent week by securing a 1-0 victory at home to Watford on Saturday to climb up into second place in the Premier League table.

A comfortable 3-0 triumph at Norwich City on Tuesday last week had enabled Spurs to move ahead of Arsenal into third on goal difference and this latest win was enough for them to also overtake Manchester City – whom they visit in their next match – to leave them as the nearest challengers to shock leaders Leicester City.

Despite the narrow margin of the final scoreline on Saturday, Tottenham dominated the game throughout – creating enough chances to have won by a far greater margin than just Kieran Trippier's first goal for the club – and head coach Pochettino was delighted by the display.

"The stats are unbelievable – it was one of the best games we've played," he said. "We deserved the result, we created a lot of chances and deserved to score more, but 3-0 is good. Three points and we're second in the table, so it's a fantastic performance from the players.

"We need to recognise that our supporters were brilliant. The patience and the energy from our supporters was fantastic and I want to say thank you to them because they were brilliant again.

"I'm very happy for Kieran. He arrived in the summer and has worked hard to get his opportunity. We have a strong squad and we can pick different players and the team plays with the same philosophy and in the same way. This is the key to this type of performance.

"We showed maturity, but we also need to say one more time that we're also the youngest squad in the Premier League. It's fantastic. We feel proud of them, the way they play and the character they show. We need to feel proud of our players, because they were fantastic."

And, ahead of Sunday's showdown with the reigning champions, Pochettino feels that there is a growing belief in the squad that they can follow in City's footsteps by winning the title this season.

Growing belief: Mauricio Pochettino feels that confidence is building in Tottenham's squad that they can win the Premier League title

"You can see in their eyes, the feeling and the energy that they believe," he added. "In football belief is the most important word. I believe in my squad and they believe too in the way we play.

"But it is better not to speak too much, only to show, to work hard. This is the better way to show we are ready to compete and after, we see what happens. But the most important thing is to do rather than speak.

"We are in a very good position, but we need to keep working and not think too much about the future.

"For me historically Tottenham are one of the biggest clubs in England so it is not a surprise we are in a good position. Maybe considering the last few years it is a surprise, but in the past Tottenham showed they are one of the best clubs in England."

Nielsen sets her sights on sealing a place on the podium

TALENTED young runner Lina Nielsen is looking to continue the progress she made last year by securing some podium finishes in the coming season.

By her own admission, 2015 saw the 19-year-old from Enfield and Haringey Athletic Club become one of the most promising 400metre runners in the country – but she was unable to turn this into any medals as she narrowly missed out on a place on the podium in several events, coming fourth at the British Universities and Colleges Sports National Championships.

However, Nielsen – whose twin sister Laviai is the reigning European Junior champion over 400m – believes that she does now have the right frame of mind to challenge for the top spots.

She said: "The year before last I would have described myself as an average athlete who was running decent times. Then suddenly I was one of the best in the country and it was like my body was there but my mind hadn't caught up.

"So confidence was a big issue and I needed to use sports physiology to try to understand why I was taking part in athletics and try to stay focused.

"I needed time to let my mind catch up, so I believe in a lot of my races last year I could have run better had my mind been in the right place. My confidence has improved in all areas now."

And Nielsen will test out her new-found confidence later this month when she again takes part in the BUCS Nationals – the United Kingdom's largest annual multi-sport event – in Sheffield.

"I have been really looking forward to the BUCS Nationals," she added. "I think last year I went into them under confident so I did not perform as well as I could have, but since then I have gained a lot of confidence.

"I came fourth both indoors and outdoors so this time I am looking to attack the competition and get a medal. I am looking forward to the battle.

"I am not sure yet if I can challenge for the gold or not. I will have to start my indoor season and see where I am performance wise. But I would be happy with any podium place. I just want to have that medal around my neck."

British Universities and Colleges Sports is the national governing body for higher education sport in the UK, representing more than 150 institutions.

Covering 52 sports, BUCS aids grass-roots participation through to supporting aspiring elite athletes en route to Commonwealth or Olympic Games. See www.bucs.org.uk for more information.

Clash is postponed

HARINGEY BOROUGH have still not played a home game in more than two months after Saturday's scheduled Ryman Division One North clash against Romford fell victim to a waterlogged pitch.

The poor weather of recent weeks relented enough to enable every other game in the Ryman League to take place over the weekend, but the continued problems with the pitch at Coles Park meant that it was still not in a playable condition and the match was called off.

Despite their inactivity, Borough – who have not played at home since December 5 – remain clear of the relegation zone and currently find themselves in 19th place in the table.

However, the side have now played fewer matches than any other team in the division and face a growing fixture pile-up in the remainder of the campaign.

Haringey Borough make the trip to Phoenix Sports on Saturday (3pm) and are then due to host Aveley on Tuesday (7.45pm).
